The solicitors for Calgary Power Co. wrote confirming certain terms of the proposed agreement to the effect that the company will not appeal to the Board of Public Utilities for power to increase rates for Wetaskiwin utilities, as well as to indemnify the Council in the event of an action for damages. Hon. H. G. Greenfield Talks at Board of Trade Luncheon

A representative and largely attended joint meeting of the Board of Trade and Kiwanis Club was held Wednesday evening of last week, with W. Prest, Vice-President, presiding. The speaker for the occasion was Hon. H. G. Greenfield, agent general of Alberta at London, England. At the outset of his address Mr. Greenfield, referred to a trip to the Pacific Northwest, and to the wonderful development which had taken place there since his previous visit some five years ago. He also referred to a trip to the southern part of the province and to the growth which had taken place in the many communities visited. He then referred to the duties of the London office, among them being making speeches, lantern lectures, preparing press articles and the distribution of literature, and advertising. He had the most hearty co-operation from the British press. In the matter of immigration, he was co-operating with the railways by giving information about Canada, particularly Alberta, which was a help in getting a desirable type of people to come here. But caution must be taken not to flood the country. As tractors and combines are not making the place of farm labor, less people can be absorbed. All civilized countries in the world will have to face the unemployment problem caused by modern machinery. Among his personal duties was the interesting of British capital and general investment of all kinds in Alberta. He then referred to prejudices of the people of the old countries had in Western Canada on account of investments which had been unsuccessful but the conditions are rapidly improving and money is now being invested in the Turner Valley oil field and more will come after the field is proven to be successful. There is a decided trend in the Old Country for closer trade relationship with Canada. Mr. Greenfield then reviewed the pre-war period and the tremendous load the Old Country carried during and since the war. Many of the gigantic problems have been solved and England will come around O.K. Taxation in England is tremendous and is being paid with the greatest admiration. Mr. Greenfield appealed for (Continued on Page 5)

GOLDEN EAGLE DIES AS ADULT RESCUES SMALL CHILDREN

Moose Jaw, Oct. 11.—A giant golden eagle lies battered to death here today after making swooping attacks on school children and standing its ground against the club-swinging onslaughts of adults.

Parents of children at whom the monster bird had swooped continually, rushed to the youngsters' aid with clubs, but the eagle stood its ground and faced the attackers, beating wings that measured more than seven feet from tip to tip. Under the heavy stroke of a club, the bird fell dead.

It was necessary to have a majority of two to one, but the ballots showed that the citizens favored the proposal by a majority of about six to one. The result announced was:

Obituary

ANDREAS JACOB
The citizens of Wetaskiwin were shocked on Monday to learn that Andreas Jacob had accidentally shot himself about noon on Monday last, when he was hunting for prairie chickens near the R. C. Cemetery, west of the city. It is surmised that as he was crawling under a fence, the trigger caught, and the charge entered his breast a little above the heart, death resulting almost instantly. He was aged about thirty-five years and five months. He was a native of Germany and came to Wetaskiwin in January, 1927, and had been employed with the Royal Meat Market for about three years, but recently was obliged to resign on account of heart trouble. He leaves a wife and two daughters, one of whom is a cripple. The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon, service being conducted in the German Lutheran Church by Rev. A. Appelt. The interment was in the Wetaskiwin cemetery.

DR. N. A. JOHNSON

The funeral of the late Nels A. Johnson took place at the Swedish Mission Church, Malmo, Sunday afternoon, and was the largest funeral ever held in the Wetaskiwin district. A floral tribute was laid over the casket and the interment was in the cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Munro spent the weekend at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. A. S. Craig, who has been ill and has returned from taking X-ray treatment in the University Hospital, Edmonton, a patient of Dr. Nelson.

In a Shredded Wheat Company contest, Gladys Holtby, Wetaskiwin, was awarded a $200 prize for painting a set of Shredded Wheat Alphabet inscriptions. Her set was considered one of the best received during the month of September.

The Girls' Branch of the W.A., with their leader, Mrs. Wade, and friends, spent an enjoyable evening on Monday, when instead of the usual indoor meeting, they had a wienner roast. The time was spent in games and singing and everybody reported a good time and were sorry when ten o'clock came and it was time to go home.

At a highly enjoyable social evening given by the Moose Lodge and Women of Moosehead Legion on Thursday last, a miniature minstrel show was presented in clever style by the ladies. Mesdames Williams, Felt, Thors, Evans, Thirk, Beamish, Bidinger, Edwards, Schmitz and Armstrong constituted the "circle," the latter as interloper. Mesdames Scott and Braglin provided the music. Mesdames Thirk and Evans contributed a laughable photographic sketch and Mrs. Bellamy delivered a discourse on "Miracles" in true darkey style.

HORSE KILLED ON ROAD

Another accident occurred on the highway a couple of miles north of town on Wednesday evening in which a horse belonging to Jack Youker was killed when struck by W. Servant's car. Mr. Servant and his daughter were driving north and had just passed a couple of cars coming towards Leduc when the horse appeared on the road. Miss Servant was at the wheel and when she noticed the horse loom up in the dusk, pulled towards the ditch to avoid hitting it but the edge of the visor caught the horse behind the ear and it dropped to the ground dead. The car was thrown into the ditch and damaged to quite an extent—Leduc Representative.

DR. J. S. SUTHERLAND PASSES AWAY AT LONG BEACH, CALIF.

A telegram on Monday carried the sad news of the death of Dr. J. S. Sutherland at Long Beach, California. Up until April of 1927 he practised here and after settling went to Chicago where he continued his studies until a short time ago when he moved to Long Beach to open an office. The news of his death comes as a shock and the many friends of the family will join with us in extending sympathy to his wife and children—Ally Free Press. (It will be remembered that Dr. Sutherland practiced his profession in Wetaskiwin for some years before going to Altx.)

WETASKIWIN CITIZEN HONORED ON HIS RETIREMENT

A few days ago a very pleasant event took place at the Wetaskiwin Court House, when C. H. Swanson, who had been the efficient and courteous caretaker of the building since its erection about 20 years ago, was honored by the lawyers and court officials of the community upon his retirement. W. J. Logie, J.C., the senior lawyer in the district, referred to the very satisfactory way in which Mr. Swanson had always carried out his duties and called upon His Honor Judge Lees to present a handsome reading lamp to Mr. Swanson as a slight token of appreciation and conveying with it the very best wishes for the future. Mr. Swanson was taken very much by surprise, but very feelingly thanked those with whom he had been associated for their kind remembrance at this time, and for their many expressions of good will.

At the monthly meeting of the Wetaskiwin Hospital Board on Wednesday evening last, Ald. A. A. Ellis was chosen as chairman to succeed the late Dr. N. A. Johnson.

A wreath was authorized for the late Dr. Johnson and the secretary was authorized to send a letter of condolence to Mrs. Johnson.

Miss McWhinnie, the superintendent, reported that there had been 49 patients admitted in September, with a total of 366 hospital days. There had been 29 operations, 6 births and 2 deaths.

Hon. George Hoadley then addressed the Board, stating he had been asked to come down to give what help he could toward the formation of a Municipal District. He was pleased to know that everything was coming along so well in Wetaskiwin with regard to the proposed Municipal hospital scheme. He reviewed the present situation in the Province and said that the towns of Sangued and Youngstown were now waiting to take a vote on the Municipal hospital question. Lloydminster, Coronation, Veteran, Consort and Claresholm were all busily engaged in preparing to establish hospital districts. He emphasized the point that if a district was not taken in at first, it was sure to express a desire to come in afterwards, and as a means of adding to the revenues of the Municipal hospital, he suggested inviting contributions from the parties interested in the district that had not come in because if they had once been in the hospital, and knew its benefits, they would wish to subscribe to the Municipal hospital district.

A SATISFACTORY VOTE

The vote on Monday last on the proposed agreement providing that the Calgary Power Company Limited take over the electric light and water utilities in Wetaskiwin, created the keenest interest and resulted in the largest vote of burgesses on any issue here being polled. About eighty-four per cent of the resident property owners expressed their opinion on the issue, and the decision in favor of the proposal was very definite, as eighty-three per cent of those casting their ballots registered their desire to have the transfer made.

According to the terms of the contract, the Calgary Power Company takes over the utilities "on or before November 30th" when they assume the responsibility of furnishing Wetaskiwin with a sufficient supply of electric energy and water. As it will likely take several months to bring the present light and power system up to a standard of efficiency, which will adequately cope with the demands of the citizens, it will undoubtedly be next spring before the best service can be rendered. The water well under construction in the western part of the city promises to meet the present needs and as this supply can be connected up with the system before freezeup, it would appear as though the citizens will not experience another water shortage after this work is completed.

The action of the great majority of the citizens in voting for an adequate supply of light and power, as well as water, is very gratifying to all those having the welfare of this community at heart, as by their actions, Wetaskiwin will be placed on the same plane as our neighboring towns, and will have equal advantages for growth and development, with the added opportunity of installing more electrical appliances in our homes, which will increase the comfort and convenience of our citizens at very reasonable cost.

As the best interests of Wetaskiwin can be furthered by concerted and united action on the part of the citizens, The Times appeals to everyone to forget the differences which arose during the heat of the recent contest and join forces with a determination to keep Wetaskiwin in the forefront of the towns of western Canada, and to keep as their objective the making of Wetaskiwin a still more prosperous, beautiful and comfortable centre in which to reside. A house divided against itself cannot stand and neither can a town without law and co-operation, prosper and grow as it should. Let's now all get together and boost for Wetaskiwin, first, last and all the time.

CHEAPER ELECTRIC LIGHT

The electric light users of town were much pleased this month when they got their bills from the Calgary Power Co. and found a substantial rebate had been credited on account of the increased amount of electrical energy used in town.

The Calgary Power Co. has been serving Innisfail for about sixteen months and with much satisfaction to the citizens generally and at a considerable saving in dollars. Our present rate being considerably less than it was when the town was operating its own plant and no one can question the better service.

On the whole we feel that the Calgary Power Company is to be commended for the service they have been giving and no doubt this will continue.

We are still hoping that the Power Company will take up the matter of sewer system and feel that our council at this time band their efforts along this line—Backfield Province.

THE HABIT OF PROMPTNESS

The habit of promptness is one of the highest virtues in life, at least as it affects others in relation to yourself. There may be other qualities of character more vital to your personal welfare, but in the way you react upon others there is hardly any other virtue which exceeds that of promptness. This applies particularly to the keeping of appointments. How many hours, in the sum total, are wasted of other people's time by the habit of tardiness in some individuals in keeping an appointment? To set an hour and a time for meeting, to some people is the most important matter, and they will break that appointment; they would suffer great inconvenience and loss themselves. But to others it is a mere passing thought, and they regard their word so lightly that they even forget the appointment altogether. This is especially true of meetings, public and clubs, so that absentees and lateness are the greatest affliction that affects such gatherings. People who so lightly break an appointment are very lax in their discipline and should take immediate stock of themselves, for it is usually the same people who do it, and upon whom the habit grows and grows.

The same spirit also leads people to disregard their debts when they are due, or fail to pay an account when it is promised. The losses sustained in the business world by the disregard of the time element in the payments of debts is tremendous. Promptness in meeting one's financial obligations is a great test of true character. Laxity here is indicative of grave weakness in the moral fibre. A person who deliberately disregards an obligation, postponing it to suit his own convenience, when he knows that he has definitely promised it at such and such a time, is showing a weakness that has many ramifications and crops out in his actions at unexpected places and times.

The test of this attitude lies in little things such as small accounts which so often are contracted, and which are so easily forgotten.—Cardston News.

THE DARK OUTLOOK

(By Walt Mason)

A thousand problems face us, solutions most obscure; a thousand evils chase us, each calling for a cure. The world is full of sorrow, there's trouble everywhere; no comfort can we borrow, and so we read our hair. Each morning we assemble before the synagogues; "The world," we say, and tremble, "is going to the dogs. The criminals are busy, the courts are on the blink, and citizens get dizzy from slipping bootleg liquor. The nations seek divorces, the husbands use the coop, our land, on darkened courses, is headed for the soup. There's naught in view but evil, wherever we may gaze; our wheat is full of weevil, the borers eat our maize. Our boys and girls are skating along demitasse coast; where is that moral rating of which we used to boast? Sometimes I join the chorus and utter plaintive spels; "The prospect now before us," I say, "my blood congeals." But, having thought it over, while saving ricks of wood, I say to my dog Rover, "this world is pretty good. There always have been troubles to make sad men despair, and they blew up like bubbles, and vanished in the air. Oh, long ago our fathers were waiting, in their turn; they had a thousand bothers, a thousand griefs to burn. They said the world was going to ruin right along; but time was shortly showing our dads where they were wrong. Our fathers' dads before them kicked up the same old row; sin crises, came to bore them, as they confront us now. In every generation men murmur and repine, and say this blooming nation is headed for the swine."

LESS CASH AND MORE CHEQUES BEING USED the scene of a robbery with such speed and the hold-up man is probably one of the reasons why cheques have superseded cash.

One interesting banking practice, quite common in England but rather uncommon in this country, is that of "crossing cheques." A crossed cheque can only be turned into cash through the medium of a banking account; in other words, it cannot be cashed over the counter of the bank upon which it is drawn as an uncrossed cheque can be. This is the practical effect of writing the words "not negotiable" across a cheque.

The using of "crossed cheques" fairly bristles with legal subtleties and to the practical business man, once off the path of common practice and the definition of a crossed cheque almost enters the realm of mysticism. Possibly this is the reason that the practice has not taken root on this side of the water. Use of cheques here is more unrestrained. A cheque, where there is no possible doubt attached to the party that draws the cheque or to the endorser, can become almost as negotiable as a dollar bill and conditions might arise in which one endorsed cheque would take the place of money in several transactions before being presented for payment in cash.

The trend from cash payments to cheque payments in recent years has been interesting and is accounted for by a variety of changed conditions. Not so many years ago it was a familiar sight to see a rural cattle buyer in a country town with a roll of bills often running up to a thousand dollars or so making a plainly visible bulge in his hip pocket as he dickered with farmers. That was, however, before the days that a high-powered car could take a hold-up man away from

Pesky Pimples Painful Boils Caused By Bad Blood

Boils and pimples are caused by bad blood and there is only one way to get rid of them, and that is to get to the seat of the trouble by using a good, reliable blood cleansing medicine such as

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

This preparation has been on the market for over 50 years, and is the most reliable remedy for all troubles arising from a bad condition of the blood.

It removes all the impurities from the system, and leaves a clear, healthy skin devoid of all eruptions.

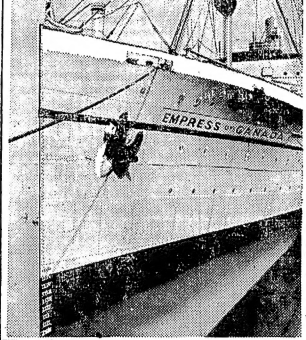

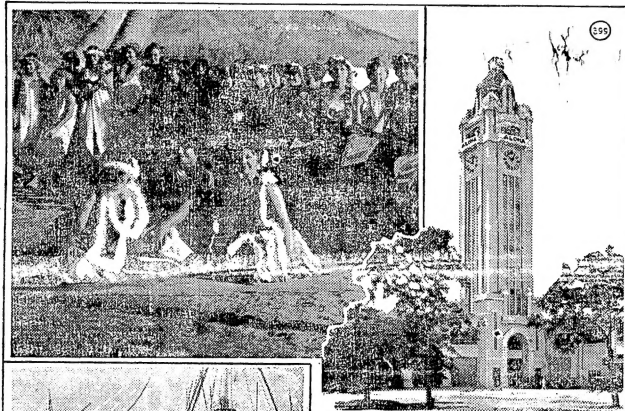

Mr. D. J. Fitzsimmons, North Bay, Ont., writes:—"For five years I was troubled with boils and pimples and tried everything any one would recommend, but found nothing did me any good."

"One day when I had three boils on my legs, and my face badly broken out in pimples, a friend recommended Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle and in a very short time everything was cleared away, and I felt twice as good as I ever did."

"White Empresses" to Call at Honolulu.

that flings its crest high in proud greeting or dignified farewell, is now to be added to the westward route of the famous Canadian Pacific liners—the White Empresses that long ago gained for Canada the Blue Ribbon for speed on the Pacific.

Starting December 7th from Victoria and Vancouver the Empress of Canada, which has just returned to service after being equipped with the fastest and most powerful engines on the Pacific, will inaugurate the new service and will call at Honolulu six days later.

Glimpses of some of the features of the "Island Paradise of the Pacific" are shown above, with (left) the giant prow of the 21,500 ton Empress of Canada. Behind the flower-decked maidens may be discerned the stately outlines of Diamond Head, famous in song and story. At the right is the Aloha Tower of the docks, that spells a Hawaiian welcome to the traveller.

Passengers to the Orient by the new Canadian Pacific service will be given the opportunity of staying over for the next ship or of paying a visit during the twelve hours the Empresses remain in Honolulu. Visitors to the Islands who plan to leave Jack Frost behind have many options for their return voyage. Several lines have co-operated with the Canadian company, and after a long lay winter on the sands of Waikiki Beach, travellers may return to Vancouver by the Canadian Australasian Royal Mail Line direct, or may come back by a Matson Line steamer to Portland, Seattle or San Francisco, or to Los Angeles by the Los Angeles Steamship Company.

THE AFTERGLOW

(By Clyde Weir)

Every man involuntarily lifted his hat to the radiance in Sonia Sidell's eyes. Everybody instinctively felt that he knew Sonia, the minute he saw her, whether he had met her or not. The saucy tilt of the diminutive nose, the delicately rounded, though firm, little chin, the "come hither" in the wide gray eyes never provoked a hint of flirtation, but a comradeship that kept Sonia's little feet dancing and made life worth while for her.

Sonia was the afterglow of the greatness of two sisters. There was Madame Vesta Sidell of grand opera fame, and Lola Elliott Sidell, the novelist whose books, a little bit daring, bordering on the sensational, gave society much to talk about. Both were married to their careers.

That was why Sonia was married to Wayne Parks. She was tired of being an afterglow, of being pointed out as "the little sister of Lola Sidell—do you know, the one who wrote that book," or as "that's Sidell's baby sister." She was weary of not being clever herself. So, because she was tired of all this, she was married to Wayne. At least that was what she told him, but in telling him, she looked up at him with such adoration in the depths of her gray eyes that he didn't believe her. He insisted on thinking that she married him because she loved him.

The two sisters shrugged their famous shoulders and said between themselves, "Oh, well, Sonia might as well get married. It's about all she can do—well."

The Parkses were poor. Not the kind of poor that lives in slums and dots on bread and water. They rented a cunning Colonial house in the suburbs with a blue breakfast nook and a white tiled bathroom. They had plenty to eat and drink. There was enough money to pay the bills and Wayne's prospects were promising. But in the eyes of Madame Sidell, with her cold clear, diamond voice, and Lola Sidell, with her monthly rain of royalties, they were. However, that is beside the point!

Wayne came upon the cards Sonia was painting one night when he stole upon her softly to surprise her with a bunch of orchids. She was finding them at her little desk in the living room—splashes of water color, violets that looked almost human, roses whose beauty might evoke tears and a basket of fruit that would make any mouth water.

"Why, Sonia," he exclaimed over her shoulder, "you're an artist, honey."

Sonia drew in her breath sharply, as though awakened from a dream. "Oh these," she laughed. "They aren't anything. Just fun. I've done these since I was a little girl."

He tilted her face up toward him. "Do you know," he asked her seriously, "that you could become famous through these?"

She jumped up quickly and slipping a hand through his arm, drew him toward the dining room.

"I'm a lot more famous for my pot roast and my lemon meringue pie," she protested. "If you like the little cards, I'm glad. I'm tinting them for a card concern—just because."

Sonia was irrelevant like. It was not long before Wayne found out the whereabouts of the "just because."

There was a baby. A dimpled, pink and white reproduction of Sonia. Their cup of happiness overflowed. And still Sonia tinted for the card concern. With the baby gurgling and crowing, an interested onlooker, on one arm Wayne often found her painting the little cards between spasms of driving a fork into the potatoes, heating the baby's milk, and beating cream for the dessert. She was a marvel, this Sonia. Even the sister, who came often to see the baby, grudgingly admitted it.

"We didn't think it was in you," remarked Lola, the nearest she ever came to admiration, "but it's silly to just paint those good-for-nothing cards."

Sonia kept her own counsel until one night when Wayne came home very tired from a hard day at the office. There was an air of suppressed secrecy about the house. Wayne felt it. Sonia met him at the door. She hastily divested him of his overcoat. She pinned a towel over his eyes.

"I've a surprise for you," she explained, leading him down the hall. He felt his steps guided into the dining room. He tried to remember whose birthday it was, and hoped she didn't have a crowd there for him to entertain.

"One, two, three! See!" He saw. Resting against a huge vase of flowers, it stood. A painting of the baby. In her little porcelain tub, clad only in her pink and white love-lingess, her tiny face radiating smiles, her small, rose-petal hands reaching for the elusive, floating soap. So real, it was he might have walked into his own bathroom. The dainty details of embroidery on the towels, everything, easily proclaimed the work to be Sonia's. One could almost smell the fragrance of bath salts.

"Leigh & Sanford, the big plumbing concern, has offered me $5,000 for this," she giggled happily. "Mr. Sanford was here today about the shower you wanted. But I told him he could not have it."

"Why, Sonia," he demurred. "I didn't want to commercialize your baby!" she told him. "Besides, it's your birthday today. This is your present from baby and me. We are going to frame it for you."

Yes, Sonia was an afterglow. The two sisters were explosively expressive in their indignation. Think of the money. Sonia was a idiot! She did not even think of the baby's future.

MATERNAL MORTALITY

Some weeks ago, an article was published, under the above heading, which concluded by urging that the provision of adequate medical and nursing care for every mother, both before and during her confinement, be accepted as a national policy, and that every community in Canada bestir itself to see that such services were made available for each mother in the community. Since the publication of this article, requests have come for information as to what might be done, and an opportunity presents itself to reply, in a second article, to the questions suggested by the previous one.

In a country so widespread and so varying in population and in climate, it is impossible to lay down a plan which would be suitable for all. The best that can be done is to state what the communities, who know their own conditions, their particular needs and their resources, to work out a plan suitable to their locality.

Every expectant mother should have ante-natal care, which means an early examination and supervision during her entire pregnancy by her physician. At the time of her confinement, she should have her doctor and also the services of a graduate nurse. The properly qualified nurse does not take the place of the doctor, but, working under the doctor's direction, she is as indispensable as the doctor himself. There is also need for hospital accommodation for those cases which cannot be properly cared for at home.

When a community is ready to face this problem, or when some interested persons are willing to make an effort to do something, it is advisable for them to consult with the county or district medical society and with the Health Officer. The lay group and the professional group should work together in making a study as to particular needs and regarding plans for the future. Representatives from the local nursing profession should, of course, be included in such a conference.

The apparent impossibility of doing everything that should be done is no reason for detouring a willing group from doing their utmost at present. Progress is made by small steps just as surely as by occasional leaps and bounds.

Questions, concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

LOST POUNDS OF FAT —in 2 short weeks

Kruschen Salts will give many a fat person a joyous surprise. You can knock pounds off your weight and years off your age this safe and easy way. Every morning take "the little daily dose" of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast. This will mean that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases is being expelled from the system. They are the cause of all the trouble because they remain in the system and accumulate in the form of excess, unhealthy fat. "I have lost several pounds in less than 2 weeks. It is so safe and easy. No dieting, no drugs. I have tried several other ways, but with no good results. Kruschen is all you claim it to be."

After three or four weeks of the little daily dose, get on to the scales and see how many pounds of fat you have lost. Your mirror also will tell you what you have gained in health and vigor. Your eyes will sparkle, your skin will be clearer, you will feel unbelievably youthful and energetic—you will feel many pounds lighter and many years younger.

LIFEBOAT - WOMEN NOW!

WOMEN may soon "man" the lifeboats now, if this young lady's example is followed. Miss Lilly Allinson, stewardess on the Cunard liner "Alaunia", is the first woman in the 90 years of Cunard history to pass the British Board of Trade examination and receive a certificate as a "lifeboatman". She is here seen receiving instructions from Third Officer MacKellar on the ship.

Parents, Students and Exams

The accompanying article written by D. L. Shortliffe, M.A., for the A.T.A. Magazine, will be read with the keenest interest. Mr. Shortliffe is an outstanding educationalist, and will be one of the speakers at the Teachers' Convention for the Wetaskiwin district on November 7th and 8th. The article reads:

I have been asked to say a word on the adolescent problem.

Perhaps one should begin by defining the problem. Many definitions might be given. The criminologist would state the problem in different terms from the theologian, and the educationalist from the sociologist. Nevertheless there would be common factors running through these various definitions. This common factor might be stated as follows: The adolescent problem is the problem of persuading the adolescent to behave in the way his elders think he should. Be it noted that we do not say "in the way his elders behave," but "in the way his elders think he should."

Viewed thus it is evident immediately that the problem has a two-fold character. We have to consider the innate characteristics of adolescence in order to discover to what extent they give rise to a problem. This is the internal part of the problem. Then we have to examine the behaviour of the adults, since this behaviour has its undoubted effect on the young. We may call this the external part of the problem.

Like all such divisions, this division is purely artificial and is made merely in the interests of convenience in discussion. We are living in a universe. This means that each has some bearing on every other thing; all things work together.

We proceed to explore briefly the internal part of the problem. What characteristics of present-day adolescence give rise to a "problem?" According to reports some of these characteristics are: 1, an exaggerated frivolousness, rendering it impossible to take a serious view either of one's own career or of the world in general; 2, laziness; 3, a rattle-headed and neurotic interest in the merely mechanical aspects of modern civilization, e.g., the automobile; 4, lack of sense of responsibility; 5, intellectual dishonesty; 6, a disregard for those conventions that in the past lent delicacy and romance to the relations between the sexes; those conventions that resulted in happy homes, homes that were the abode of domestic felicity; homes in which their children were reared with a lofty conception of their mission on earth; homes which, as statesmen and philosophers were wont to say, were the bulwark of the nation.

It is obvious, of course, that I have not stated a title of the internal part of the problem. I have merely mentioned a few of the charges I have heard adults make from time to time against youth; for I have never heard a youth admit any large number of such charges to be true. These charges always come from the territory containing the external part of the problem, viz., the adults. Are these charges true? Is the adolescent the temple of so many unclean spirits? Do these exist in sufficient degree to create a problem? Do they exist to a greater extent than "wiser fathers was a boy?"

No doubt one could obtain many answers to such questions. I shall try to answer a few of them from the standpoint of a high school teacher of some years of experience. Such answers must of necessity be only partial. They are not statistical and they are obviously not untinged with personal bias. I give them for what they are worth.

Firstly, the exaggerated frivolousness. In my opinion there is substantial truth in the charge. Perhaps it seems so to me because of the fact that many more young people attend high school now than formerly, and it is in the high school that the teacher comes in contact with them. Certainly there is a spirit of downright frivolity among high school students now that was not present a quarter of a century ago. There is a spirit of shameless disregard of the opportunities provided and an inclination to trample them under foot. This is by no means universal. We have just as good a class of students as we ever had, but they are submerged by a mass of loafers and bluffers to such a degree that it is difficult to do good work.

As to laziness: a crowd of young people whose frivolity is as just described would inevitably be lazy. The "rattle-headed and neurotic interest" and the "lack of sense of responsibility" are corollaries of the qualities already mentioned.

We now come to the mental dishonesty. In my opinion here is a tendency to bluff at reasoning today that would have been frowned upon by the students themselves twenty years ago. I find this in teaching mathematics. Once again I hasten to say that this is far from general. There are just as many good mathematical students in high school now as there ever were; but it does not seem so. This is caused by the fact that the students are submerged by a rabble, as already stated. It is my belief that a similar throng of intellectual prevaricators always existed. They now come more vividly within the purview of the high school teacher simply because more of them "go to high school." Huxley, that great apostle of intellectual honesty, said in a debate one time: "Clever men are as common as blackberries, but show me an honest one!"

Finally let us refer to the charge, so often repeated by certain adults, that the adolescent of today is characterized by "a disregard of those conventions, etc." In my opinion there is no more truth in this charge than there ever was. I admit I have not made anything in the nature of a study of such questions. Judging from general and random observations I should say that perhaps there is a greater degree of downright frankness and less of hypocrisy among our young folk today than formerly. It remains to be proven that this gives rise to any "problem." I do not believe it does.

Let us now note a few salient features of the external part of the problem. This is obvious. The general tone and spirit of society are determined by the adult, not by the adolescent. The adolescent is the product of the adult—directly by heredity and indirectly by the general nature of the environment, which, as we have suggested, is the handiwork of adults. Hence if there is any truth in a pessimistic view of youth, the adults are to blame. This, by the way, reveals at once the hollowest of youth by adults. Let the adults first cast the beams out of their own eyes; then shall they see clearly to remove the mote from the eyes of their children.

But to some details. I have already suggested that any internal feature of the problem has its cause in the external, that the shortcomings of youth are the fruits of the shortcomings and obtuseness of the adults. It follows that a complete discussion of the external part of this problem would involve an entire philosophy of human society. Our discussion here will therefore be extremely fragmentary.

Firstly, again, the exaggerated frivolousness, etc. The blame for this is straight on the adults. This is a frivolous age and the adults have made it so. Since it is not an age of miracles, youth is frivolous, too. To quote an example of this infinite capacity for trifling exhibited by the adults: Recently I had a talk with the father of an eighteen year old youth who has been wasting his time for four years at high school. The father turned on me with a sardonic smile and told me it was none of my business, that he was a taxpayer, and that he was going to keep his son at high school and university till he becomes a "doctor." "It is forty-five years old when he gets through!" What are we to expect from a poor boy who is handicapped with the misfortune of being the son of such a simonist?

Not long ago, in an Alberta city, the mother of a boy objected to his taking forge work because he got his hands "dirty!" I could quote many other examples of this silliness on the part of the adults. It is this attitude of vanity and trifling on the part of adults, combined with timidity on the part of educationists, that explains why we are not going to have a rational system of secondary education in our time. It explains why so many thousands of the young are at academies and high schools instead of being at high schools designed to meet their needs. The whole question of secondary education is being trifled with by adults. Imagine the unfairness, then, of piling the blame on the young! Poor youths! They have the misfortune of being guided by adults who are just as frivolous as they are.

Space forbids that we continue these details. I shall refer to but one more, viz., dishonesty of intellect. This is an outstanding characteristic of modern adults. I do not deny that it has always been a characteristic of adults.

Let us take an example. In an election campaign it is quite customary for the Liberals to admit that the Conservatives are tricky, that they are in league with gigantic financial corporations in which dividends are more important than humanity, that they are to a great extent a group of office seekers. The Conservatives, of course, was eloquent in proving exactly the same things about the Liberals. In this sham fight, the whole genius of which is insincerity and bluff, the adults are the combatants and the youths the spectators! I say to the adults: "Mend your own ways before starting to criticize the ways of youth!"

Both of the political parties, then, strive for office by endeavoring to prove that they are unworthy of it; that they are not to be trusted in dealing with the people of their own country. And now we come to a near miracle. If a government composed of these very men comes to blows with a similarly constituted government in another country it is an axiom of patriotism that they become immediately men of probity and honor. This, I suppose, is a sample of the mental honesty of adults.

Recently the adults of Christendom brought on the greatest war of all time. It was well said at the time that old men made it and the young fought it. Both sides were loud in their protestations of righteousness and justice, and at least one side declared that it was "the war to end war."

Well, how about it now? Has the beast of war, this low-browed offspring of the brains of adults, been removed from the pathway of youth?

Sparks from the recent Provincial 25th Anniversary Convention which met in Calgary October 1st to 4th: In her opening address, the President pointed out that the spirit of the people was not in accord with present legislation in our Province. Three classes only are satisfied. Those who are engaged in the traffic, those who wish to gratify an appetite, and those who are apathetic. The most difficult task is to arouse the indifferent. But an anti-alcohol movement is being developed in our Province, in our Dominion, and it is becoming worldwide. The anniversary objective recommended, is the organization of a campaign extending to every corner of the Province to register the total abstinence sentiment of every community. Since improved legislation could only be effective when supported by a strong body of temperance sentiment. Another campaign which will be launched from coast to coast is to have scientific temperance brought more and more before the people.

The voting strength of the Convention was 101 of the Province at this 25th anniversary, 1500, also an additional honorary membership of 247. $4,539 has been raised during the year.

Three world life memberships were presented to Mrs. McKinney, 21 years Provincial President; to Mrs. Dewar, who recruited 70 new members last year; and to Mrs. G. H. Belyd, now of B.C. for many years Supt. of Western territory work, and to the convention guest, Mrs. Reekie, of Sask., a bouquet was presented. Her Provincial report of conditions was very unsatisfactory. Eleven breweries have been built or are under construction now, where there were formerly none. The drink bill was $14,000,000 last year. The evils of alcohol is being taught in Saskatchewan schools and an effort is being made to have it taught in Normal school.

Three Ukrainian women dressed in native costume, took part in a pageant and made a strong plea for the continuance of temperance work in the schools of foreigners.

The medical temperance report showed that doctors and nurses had in many places given lectures on the evil of alcohol.

As the latest findings of science has proved alcohol to be a purely narcotic drug, the resolution was adopted to amend the Canadian Drugs Act as to place alcohol under the list of narcotic drugs.

Dr. J. V. Follet, one of the speakers at a banquet tendered the delegates, gave as his opinion that cigarette smoking did more harm among girls than drink.

The Diamond Medal Contest, an interesting evening feature, was won by Melba Armstrong, Nanton. The Poster Contest was won by Beulah Dole of Calgary. Re-affiliation with the National Child Welfare, the League of Nations and the Provincial Council of Women was approved.

Piles

QUICKLY BANISHED

"I suffered years of agony through blind itching piles," says Mrs. W. Hughes, of Hochelaga St., Montreal. "Pain, loss of strength, complete misery, was my daily lot until I came across Zam-Buk. I know now that there is nothing on earth to equal this grand herbal healer. Since it lifted me from misery my earnest wish is to make Zam-Buk known to all sufferers."

ALBERTA HIGHWAYS ARE MARKED BY MOTOR ASS'N

Marking of two thousand miles of automobile roads north of Red Deer has been undertaken by the northern division of the Alberta Motor Association. The southern branch has been working for some time on proper marking of highways in that part of the province, so that next season, with its increased car traffic, should see a large percentage of the main and secondary highways of this province fully marked, something that will be of lasting credit to the Alberta Motor Association.

In the north, much good work has been done by J. A. McNeill, manager of the northern division of the Alberta Motor Association. There has been complete marking of the highway from Edmonton to Viking, Wainwright, Chauvin, south to the Green Trail north of Hayer. Every turn is plainly marked R or L as well as every crossroad being marked with a straight ahead sign. The Green highway from Wetaskiwin to Maclellan has been completed as well as the Black Trail from Edmonton to Athabasca.

Fred R. Brason has been directing the work of road marking in southern Alberta and splendid results have been obtained there thus far. It is realized that a large percentage of Alberta's tourist traffic enters from the Montana gateways as well as over the Banff-Windermere trail, so that adequate marking of roads in that part of the province is a primary requisite.

FARMERS ADVISED TO SECURE SEED OATS EARLY

One of the most serious effects of the past dry season will be a shortage of good seed oats for next year's crop in some sections of the province. Farmers in these areas are being advised by the Department of Agriculture to lose no time in securing the seed supply they will require for spring.

There will be little difficulty in supplying this demand from other parts of the province where a heavier yield of the coarse grains was harvested, but it will be necessary to know the requirements of the drier districts at an early date. Already a considerable demand is reported from outside the province, and buyers are booking orders for a large quantity of seed oats to be shipped out of Alberta before next spring.

In order that Alberta farmers may be assured of their seed supply while grain of a good quality is available, they are advised to communicate at once with their local elevator agents so that arrangements can be made for any necessary shipments before seedling time.

IMPORTANCE OF FISH

Few people ever think that there is similarity between chickens and fish, but similarity is present, none the less. The similarity is that the composition of fish protein resembles that of chicken muscle, a fact which is pointed out by Dr. Donald K. Tressler, of the famous Mellon Institute of Research, as especially important from the dietary standpoint in view of the recognized high nutritive value of chicken meat. This protein content, moreover, is the chief food constituent of fish and in it, in ample proportions, are all the essential amino-acids, "the wonderful compounds of which our muscles and many of our other tissues are constructed." These facts explain, in part, the increasing emphasis which scientists and dietitians are putting on the food value of fish, but it is only explanation in part.

Not only are sea fish rich in a protein which contains tissue-building compounds that are lacking in varying degrees in some other foods but fish are easily digested, they contain much higher amounts of fat soluble vitamins than are to be found in meats, they include some inorganic elements of nutritive value that are missing in many foods, and the presence in them of such substances as iodine makes them preservatives of goitre and other diseases. These are among the reasons which of late years have led doctors and other health experts more and more to advise the regular and frequent inclusion of fish in the articles of diet.

THE COMBINE HARVESTER IN WESTERN CANADA

The use of the combine harvester which both cuts and threshes the grain has increased at a very rapid rate in the Western Provinces and particularly in Saskatchewan. According to officials of the Swift Current, Saskatchewan, Experimental Station, who have been observing harvesting operations with the combine for seven years, there were more than 2300 combines used in Saskatchewan last year. In Alberta more than 1000 were used and in Manitoba a considerably smaller number. The opinion of a large number of the operators of these machines was secured by J. Taggart and J. MacKenzie of the Swift Current Station who have prepared a booklet on their observations that has been issued as Bulletin No. 113 of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. The outfit for these machines is stated to represent almost $10,000,000. Among the 400 odd machines used at one-half operated the windrow harvester and pickups, which add fully one and one-half million dollars to the cost of the equipment. Out of 275 combine users questioned 44% used the straight combine, 36.5% divided their cutting between the straight combine and use of the windrow harvester and pickup, while 19% use entirely the windrow harvester.

VERDUN ACCEPTS HILLSIDE CHALLENGE

A special meeting of the Verdun U.F.A. local was held on Tuesday, October 15th. It was decided to accept the challenge issued by the Hillside U.F.A. to meet in public debate on the subject, "Resolved, that as soon as 75% of the wheat producers of Alberta have signed the contract a compulsory wheat pool will be established by law." Verdun will uphold the negative and will endeavor to prove that a compulsory wheat pool is not to the best interests of the Alberta farmer. The three debaters elected to represent Verdun were, Messrs. W. F. Hukerman, Max Soren and Floyd Johnson. The debate will be held in the Coal Lake hall on Wednesday evening, November 6th.

VERDUN-HAULTAIN U.F.A.

A meeting of the above local was held in the Verdun school on Wednesday, October 9, with H. Benthin as chairman and W. O. Mountain secretary.

The minutes of the last joint meetings were read and adopted.

After reading of current correspondence, the chairman called upon Mr. Stearns, a director of the Alberta Livestock Pool.

Mr. Stearns gave an extensive and generally satisfactory explanation of the methods of operating, aims and benefits of said Pool.

A number of questions were answered by Mr. Stearns, after which new contract forms were distributed for personal study.

A lunch was then served, after which Wm. Irvine, M.P., and H. G. Young, who had dropped in for a friendly visit were called upon for a few words.

Mr. Irvine stressed the benefits of co-operation in selling agricultural products.

Mr. Young invited the members to visit the Hillside U.F.A. local meeting on Friday, October 11th.

Mr. King, secretary of Camrose Livestock Co-operative Association, then gave a short talk urging the farmers to seriously at least and favorably consider joining the Livestock Pool.

SILVER WEDDING

On Monday afternoon the Swedish Baptist church was the scene of a happy silver wedding, it being the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of the pastor of the church, Rev. P. M. Meyer, and his wife. The celebration was in the nature of a surprise arranged by members of the churches he serves. A group of members and friends called at their home and escorted them to the church, which had been very tastefully decorated, and where a gathering which taxed the seating capacity of the church waited.

Under the leadership of J. A. Wingblad, an active member and former
